Hi All, Day 3, Weds, went very well. More photos under subversion.
The final electronics from Mk4 were removed from the spar. The grand total weight of Mk4 was 642 lbs. The spar is now ready for the K-cor install, except for a final fine balance which will happen Thursday. The drill templates have arrived. Allen and I will mount them for checkout also on Thurs. The big progress was made in the observing room. Racks were moved to their new positions and the router electronics were put into their new rack. The room looks very different, much more open. At the end of our day, Allen provided us with a snack of fresh raspberries and creme anglaise. Incredible!
Regards, Steve
