Winds are tapering. Dome is now open for some testing, however there is a bit of cirrus so no observations yet.

Got a pro type of a queue based labview socketcam.

It currently looks like it can keep up with the 512 averages on the 4 modulation states for both cameras. However I haven't fully figured out how to write fits files in the proper data type to be getting rounding/unit conversion error. Still needs a lot of work and testing to produce an actually real data file; but with a little more work we might be able to use it to troubleshoot socketcam/labview interactions with a unique socketcam version.
